ANNOYED THE GUEST.

What Did They Think He Went to the Hotel For Anyway?

An elderly, undersized, old-fashioned man entered a fashionable New York hotel one night late in the rush season and timidly approached the desk.

"Have you got any sort of place you could put me for the night?" he asked in a rich brogue. "It's tired I am all through, and I have tried several other hotels."

"Would you mind much where you slept?" asked the clerk.

"Not at all so long as there is a comfortable bed."

"Well, the only thing I could give you is a room where the bellboys hang their coats. It is small, but it contains a bed, and I guess you could sleep all right."

"I'll take it," said the stranger, and he dived down in his jeans and pulled out a wand. "How much is it?"

"You can let that wait until the morning," protested the clerk, but the other insisted on paying.

"Will you register?" suggested the clerk, turning the book toward him.

"What's that? No; you needn't wake me in the morning," and he turned to go upstairs.

"I asked you to register," repeated the clerk.

"You needn't send me any ice water," said the other.

"But I want you to write your name in the book."

"Oh!" said the stranger. He took the pen, jabbed it into the inkstand, where he wobbled it about as if it were a brush, leaned over the desk and with a big flourish wrote the letter "J."

Then he caught his breath and made a running hieroglyph on the line underneath, which the clerk from long practice was able to decipher as "John."

The visitor then shifted his position, took another brace between the floor and the edge of the counter and started in again. There was a short and then a long sweep of the arm, and when the clerk glanced at the result something resembling a "G" had been evolved. The stranger then traced a series of letters up toward the northeast, all looking alike. The clerk after a little study decided they were meant for "annon."

Then Mr. Gannon leaned back, straightened up and as he started to put the pen back asked to be shown to his room.

"But you haven't put down your residence," suggested the clerk.

"My what?" demanded Mr. Gannon.

"The place where you live," explained the clerk.

"Look here, young man," said Mr. Gannon, "you've got my money, and you've got my name. Do you think I'm going to write here all night?" and he flung away the pen he was holding and turned away with something that sounded like a strong cuss word.—New York Press.

Came For the Supplies.

Ed Perkins used to relate this anecdote of President Lincoln: One day an old negro, clad in rags and carrying a burden on his head, ambled into the executive mansion and dropped his load on the floor. Stepping toward President Lincoln, he said:

"Am you de president, sah?"

"I am," said Mr. Lincoln.

"If dat am a fac' I's glad to meet yer. Yer see, I lives away up dar in de back o' Virginny, and I's a pore man, sah. I hear der is some pervisions in de constitution for de culled man, and I's here to get some ob 'em, sah."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Mistaken Identity.

Sir Thomas Robinson was a tall, un-couth man, and his appearance was rendered still more striking by his hunting dress, which consisted of a tight green jacket, buckskin breeches and a postilion's cap. He once set off in his hunting suit to pay a visit to his sister in Paris. He arrived at the house while there was a large company at dinner. The servant announced M.

Pert Personals.

John D. complains that he is a "has been." John should cheer up. He may get his billion yet.—Chicago News.

Lillian Russell says she always admired Thomas Jefferson. The records, however, don't show that she ever married him.—St. Louis Republic.

Colonel Goethals is now a doctor of laws as well as a doctor of science. This shows where one can get by just digging hard.—New York Post.

Waves of Water.

Baffin bay is not a bay; it is a sea.

The Missouri river drains a watershed of 580,000 square miles.

More than 200,000 tons of silt and sand are dredged from the river Thames every week.

Lake Titicaca, in Bolivia, is the highest body of navigable water in the world. It is 12,500 feet above sea level and is a little more than half as large as Lake Erie.

Recent Inventions.

A series of toothed wheels revolve and chop up the clinkers in an ash sifter invented by a New York man.

To enable two persons to use the same typewriter a table has been patented in which there is a turntable to hold the machine.

A United States naval officer has invented a torpedo carrying a gun which discharges an explosive shell into the vitals of a vessel after the torpedo has punctured the hull below the water line armor.

A Bad Recovery.

Scene: Registry office. Bridegroom (to registrar)—The first time I was married was in a church, the second time in a chapel, but I like this way best. It's so plain and simple, and I should come here if ever I got married again. (Catches sight of his bride and sees he has said the wrong thing) That is, my dear, if ever I have the—er—misfortune to get married again, of course.—London Punch.

A Dig at Dubbleigh.

Dubbleigh—Your little dog barked at me, but stopped when I looked him straight in the eye. Do you suppose he noticed my presence of mind? Miss Keen—Possibly. They say animals often see things that human beings cannot.—Boston Transcript.

The Value of Experience.

It is expedient to have an acquaintance with those who have looked into the world, who know men, understand business and can give you good intelligence and good advice when they are wanted.—Bishop Horne.

Benefit of the Doubt.

"His wife looks as if she had some secret sorrow."

"Yes, but don't blame him too hastily. Her shoes may be too tight."

"ARE YOU THE FAMOUS ROBINSON CRUSOE?" Robinson, and in walked this remarkable figure, to the amazement of the guests. One of them, a titled exquisite, lifted his fork three times to his mouth and each time laid it down without tasting the food. Unable at last to restrain his curiosity longer, he burst out eagerly, "Excuse me, monsieur, are you the famous Robinson Crusoe so remarkable in history?"
